Two or three of the largest distilleries in the country may be seized by the Government as a result of investigations growing out of the arrest of Samuel Albrecht, Baltimore broker, who is charged with attempting to bribe E. C. Yellowley, State prohibition director, and Green Miller, a special agent on his staff.

It is expected also that the investigation will lead to arrests in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington on charges of bribery and conspiracy. The Federal officials believe they are about to uncover the operations of one of the craftiest and richest of the rum rings.

Agents of Director Yellowley who have been examining Albrecht's papers in the Baltimore office informed their chief yesterday that they had found evidence which they believed sufficient to implicate two or three of the distilleries which Albrecht is alleged to have said he represented. In his talks with Agent Miller leading up to the offer of a preliminary bribe of $50,000 charged connections with nine distilleries and substantial 35 per cent. of the traffic in illegal permits in the Eastern States.

Seizures Are Threatened.
Mr. Yellowley has not yet seen Albrecht's office records, but he said that in their reported evidence of complicity on the part of the distilleries, which he would not name, should be substantiated by him he would move at once to seize them and all their contents.

Federal agents yesterday seized the three masted schooner John Scully, at anchor off Stapleton, Staten Island, with a view to determining whether the vessel has been engaged in the rum running trade. Suspicion was directed against the schooner as a result of the appearance in the Stapleton police court of William Thickett, a former member of the crew, who charged that he had been engaged to collect the wages due him. He said the ship carried a valuable cargo of liquor and that she had been engaged in rum running. Appearing as a complainant, Thickett was surprised presently to find himself locked up.

Police Lieut. John Shay then notified the Federal authorities. Agents boarded the vessel and reported that they found many cases of whiskey and papers, which indicated that the vessel had been in the liquor traffic for some time. The John Scully was a yacht until a year ago, when she was sold to a concern known as the Scully Bros., who converted her into a schooner for fishing purposes. It is expected several arrests will be made.

Raids in Long Island.

Long Island resorts were raided Friday night by the flying squadron of the Brooklyn enforcement office and six arrests were made. Those arrested were Mrs. Josephine Klein and Joseph Keller of Hempstead, Joseph Pinnegan of Huntington, Joseph Kurmalio of Port Jefferson and the manager of "Short's" restaurant in Port Jefferson.

Police Commissioner Enright announced that seven patrolmen had been tried on charges of having "failed to properly inspect or prevent violation of the prohibition law in former saloons," and fined. The men were Walter Hard, John R. Grote, William P. Brogan, John P. Kennedy, Benjamin Knapp, Peter J. Shea and Charles McCarthy. Lieut. Charles J. Satch, ten sergeants and two patrolmen were tried on similar charges, which were dismissed.

Three of the men, including Vogelzang, were taken to Brooklyn Police Headquarters for investigation there. The defendants held in Harlem court were Harry Keller, 12 Haven avenue, Queens; Walter Kabel, 3549 133rd street, Richmond Hill, and Andrew Schmidt, 923 Bryant avenue, The Bronx. Detectives Begley, Murphy, Crosby and Shields said they followed an automobile in which the defendants were riding, and the car, alleged to have been stolen from Morris Schildmeyer, 3 East 116th street, was driven to Vogelzang's garage.

Ten men playing cards in the home of Samuel Friedman, over a restaurant at 552 Blake avenue, Brooklyn, made so much noise yesterday morning that they did not hear six bandits enter the room. They were backed to the wall and robbed of money and jewelry amounting to $1,200 to $1,500 in value. Mrs. Friedman, who was in another room, was asked if she had any jewelry and the bandits saw her rings but they did not take them. Friedman pursued the bandits into the street, but no policemen were in sight and he dropped the chase. Three men and two women passing a motion picture theatre in Howard avenue, near Fulton street, Brooklyn, were stopped by five bandits. Before the robbery could be executed, however, Motorcycle Patrolman John Breitenbach approached, and, observing what was taking place, fired at the bandits. They fled. Breitenbach chased a man and caught him, and later another man was arrested near the theatre. The prisoners, who said they were William Burke, 374 Channoy street, and John Hart, 225 Hopkinson avenue, were held in bail in Gates Avenue Court for examination, denied taking part in the holdup.

TWO ARMY FLIERS HURT.

Pursuit Plane Plunges into Field
Near Providence.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 22.—Two United States Army fliers, believed to be Major Lyon and Lieut. Nichols, flying in a swift pursuit plane from Boston to New Haven on official business, were painfully injured when their machine tipped over and plunged into a field in Fiskeville in the Pawtuxet Valley. The plane was badly damaged and was left in the field while the officers were rushed by automobile to this city. One had a badly broken nose and the other received multiple cuts about the face. Both were unconscious when picked up. The officers said they were on an important mission and must get to Providence at once in order that they might obtain transportation to their destination.

CHARGED $5,000 BONUS TO COVER $12,000 LOAN

Mme. Lipowska Gets Injunction to Suit for Jewels.

Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss yesterday granted a temporary injunction, returnable Tuesday, restraining Schepps, Inc., of 159 Broadway, of which Sam Schepps, informant in the Becker case, is treasurer, from secreting or disposing of two diamonds valued at $50,000. The injunction was a favor of Mme. Lydia Lipowska, prima donna of "The Merry Widow," who says she turned the jewels over to the Schepps firm under a pretended bill of sale to recover the loan to her of $12,000, on which she was charged a bonus of $5,000.

She is going to recover the jewels without paying any interest, on the ground that the rate was usurious. Her application asserted she was informed the jewellers would dispose of the jewels unless interest and principal were paid by November 15.

SOLDIERS' LEAGUE SUES 'MAJOR' BETTY OWENS

Seeks to Recover $11,700
Raised for Disabled Men.

"Major" Betty Owens, wife of George Owens, builder, who was connected with a number of war relief organizations, was named defendant yesterday in the Supreme Court in a suit of the National Disabled Soldiers League, Inc., to recover $11,700 from her. She was an organizer and chairman of the women's auxiliary of the league.

According to the league's complaint, the auxiliary was organized in February, 1921, among its purposes being the raising of funds to aid the soldiers' organization. Sums aggregating $12,000 were raised by the women up to and during May, 1921, but only $1,000 was turned over to the league by Mrs. Owens, the complaint says. Arthur J. Carleton, attorney for Mrs. Owens, asserted his client does not owe the league a cent.
